HarperCollins Publishers Inc, United States, 2010. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 201 x 132 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book. In the spring of 2003 when Norman Mailer was 80 years old, he invited an improbable companion into his life: Dwayne Raymond, 40 years his junior, originally from a small town in Oregon, and now a waiter at a restaurant in Provincetown, Cape Cod, where Mailer spent most of his final years. Over the next half-decade, Raymond became Mailer s aide in all matters professional and private. Raymond assisted him with four books he published during this time, including his final novel The Castle in the Forest . The two spent many hours together each day talking, cooking, and researching new projects. As Raymond s responsibilities grew, so too did his friendship with Mailer, who taught him how to navigate his own personal challenges. In this poignant memoir, Dwayne Raymond presents an alternative portrayal of a writer who is frequently described as controversial, combative, and verbose; the Norman Mailer he depicts is a comparatively temperate, comprehensive man whose quirky, human qualities far outweigh the disquieting legend. Beautifully written and honestly portrayed, Mornings with Mailer is a personal and revealing story of a great writer, his Man-Friday, and their unlikely, but enduring, relationship.
